SKILLED IN SOFT PHRASES. The Honest Tramp Who Had Never Seen

Better Days-The tramp, whom the lady of the house had admitted to the kitchen table and was giving a dinner of her own cooking, was such a pleasant looking fellow that she became quite interested in him. After busying about awhile she ventured into conversation.

"You have not always been in this business, have you?" she asked. "No, madam," he replied briefly.

"Ah, I thought so. You have seen better days, then?" He looked at the fine piece of pie and big glass of cold milk she set down on the table for him to finish on, and laid down his knife and fork. "If you mean by better days, madam," he said, "that I have not always been a tramp, I will reply, 'Yes,' but if you mean by better days

A PRESIDENT-TO-BE. He Covered Himself With Glory in the Class-Room. Once during the school-days of the new president of the French republic, his professor in geography asked him: "Perier, give us the exact position and indicate the latitude of the Gambier group." Casimir-Perier crossed his arms tightly upon his chest, looking very perplexed. One of his neighbors whispered to him a wrong answer; whereupon the professor gave him the exact position of this little group, which belongs to the more important French establishment of Tahiti, and, after a short pause, and with a little point of irony, said: "You ought to know that, Perier, because it is thanks to your grandfather that France acquired the ascendency in these parts of the world; it was through his efforts and entreaties that the dusky queen of these islands was induced to come to France; and the men of my generation still remember the comical songs which celebrated the event." Perier blushed considerably; but, holding his head still higher, answered the professor with his quick and peculiar diction: "I will most certainly go over this lesson again and try to be more proficient at the next lecture; but, so far as the deeds of my grandfather go, they are so numerous that I am not old enough American interest naturally attaches to the Japanese navy from the fact that her first armed ship of modern design was an American vessel, and her first admiral was an American officer. The vessel was the ram Stonewall, which was captured from rich finds would undoubtedly be the Confederates while at Havana, and in 1868 was sold to Japan and taken to Yokohama by way of the straits of Magellan, in charge of Captain George Brown, U. "Of course." "Just then I heard Mame coming, and I said crossly: 'I wish you'd tell me where on earth you've put my curling iron."

There was no reply, so I repeated my quo-ry in a still crosser tone." "Mame is so provoking!"
"Listen: 'I—I think there must be some mistako,' said a rather faint, masculine voice. And, girls, there he was standing just inside the door." "My goodness!" "I just stamped my foot. 'There is a mistake!' I cried. 'You're in the wrong room, and I'll thank you to get out,' and I advanced, brush in hand. He fied, and I locked and double locked the door. Then I sank on the floor in a heap and cried. I couldn't forgive him for making such a silly mistake. Suddenly something struck me as strange"-You surely hadn't"-"I just had. In my haste I had missed a flight of stairs, and I had driven the man out of his own room. Oh, I'll never get over it if I live to be 1001"-Chicago Tribune.

His Doubt Dispelled.

One afternoon Mr. B.'s man of all work came to him and requested to have the evening off to go to a wedding. The request was granted, and nothing more was seen of Thomas until the next morning, when he appeared in a decidedly used up condition. One eye was black, his nose jammed in, and strips of court plaster adorned his face in every conceivable di-

"For beaven's sake, Thomas," exclaimed Mr. B. upon catching sight of him, 'what have you been up to? I thought I gave you permission to go to a wedding.'

"And so youse did, sor."
"Well, did you go!" "Shure I wint, and when I got to the house I found a felley sitting in the parlor. He was dressed up in foine shape wid a long tailed coat and a white necktie.
